

Latinos in Contemporary Society

LTST 3800, AMST 3800, WMST 3800

Online—Asynchronous

Instructor: Lilia Soto

This course explores the varied ways in which contemporary Chicana and Latina scholars engage race, class, and gender in their scholarship, including methods and epistemological traditions. We will examine scholars that explore themes that range from criminality, sexuality, migration and movement, music, art, land, and communities. Central to the course is understanding how via the readings, race, class, and gender shape the lives of Chicana and Latina in the US. Films, clips, songs, and poetry may accompany the readings.
