Kauffman discussed industrial energy developments disruption to summer range and winter range migration routes called the “green wave.” Kaufmann discussed research to measure nutritional condition of ungulates stating that long-distance migrants are fatter. Kauffman discussed the seasonal migrations of Deer 225, and other research being conducted to advance the conservation of Wyoming’s migratory ungulates. In response to inquiry from Trustee Kermit Brown, Kauffman discussed the study of changes to innate or learned behavior after a winterkill. Kauffman directed the Board to: https://migrationinitiative.org/

AGENDA ITEM TITLE: Initial Review: Saddle-Up 2023, Carman, Chestnut, Courtney

Provost and Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs Kevin Carman, Vice President for Student Affairs Kim Chestnut, and Dean of Student Success and Graduation Nycole Courtney, provided the board a short review of the 2023 Saddle Up program. The discussion included the number of students participating, edits from year-one to year-two: streamlining content, scheduling changes, modifications to the academic offerings, and testimony from Saddle Up student leader Avery O’Brien.

Chestnut reported that there were 1,242 new UW Saddle Up participants supported by 32 “Trail Bosses,” 120 “Poke Pack Leaders,” and 74 Residence Assistants. It was stated that 13 veteran students participated in the Saddle Up program. Chestnut discussed the enhanced student experience to Saddle Up year two programming of specific note was the reduction from a required 10-12 hour a day student schedule to a 7.5-hour day. Courtney discussed the streamlined program content to ensure that only critical areas were addressed throughout the week; that in response to feedback from 2022 Saddle Up students were provided more time for meals, and for class topic study, homework and exam preparation. Courtney reported the move-in date was moved to provide a weekend before the academic programming began, and transportation to Walmart was available throughout the week. Courtney described the “Note of Light of Knowledge” session co-led by Vice President for Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Zebadiah Hall, and College of Business Lecturer Kent Noble which covered elements of the Code of the West and creating community. Courtney summarized the program assessment plan. Carman reported that last March he reported the Fall to Spring retention rates for 2022 Saddle Up participants set a new record at the university, and remarked he was pleased to further report that in spite of the challenges to 2022 Saddle Up the Fall to Fall retention rate is 77.7 percent which is an increase of 2.4 percent before implementation of the Saddle Up program. Carman stated while it sounded modest, it is significant that returning students year over year are down three percent. Carman discussed the 2023 Saddle Up program received positive media attention. Carman stated a more comprehensive review of the program will be provided to the Board during its November 2023 meeting. Trustee Michelle Sullivan discussed feedback she had received regarding the value of the program. Trustee Brad Bonner reported on feedback from a Trustee Scholarship recipient related to long-days, and redundancies in the programming. ASUW President Saber Smith described his impressions of the 2023 Saddle
Up programming outlining many successful components and discussed student perspective about the cost of the program. Trustee Dave True thanked Carman for the retention statistics and inquired whether there is improved GPA as a result of participation in Saddle Up. Carman stated he would bring that information back to the Board in November 2023. UW President Seidel reported on his interactions with students during the week and that he felt Saddle Up was well received. Trustee John McKinley recommended a comprehensive review of the 2023 Saddle Up program during the Board’s November 2023 meeting.

AGENDA ITEM TITLE: Report: Low Enrollment/Low Producing Degrees/Courses, Carman

Provost and Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs Kevin Carman stated that in January 2023 his office requested a review by colleges and schools of programs that were identified as low producing as identified by the Office of Institutional Analysis (OIA). OIA identified 26 undergraduate and 34 graduate programs that were low producing (those that average fewer than 5 graduates per year for undergraduate programs and 3 graduates per year for masters programs, over a 5-year period). Carman stated reports from the colleges and schools on these programs were due July 31, 2023. Carman went on to discuss the deans’ recommended programs to be considered for review under UW Regulation 2-13 (see page 9 of the September 2023 Board Report). Carman discussed next steps which involve further discussions with deans and UW President Ed Seidel to determine how best to address the low-completion programs, and well as allow for a campus discussion period. Carman noted two majors recommended by the department of modern and classical languages for elimination are German and French and are proposing the development of a new degree program called European Language and Film Studies. Carman recommended the results be shared with the Board during its November 2023 meeting. The was no Board discussion.

AGENDA ITEM TITLE: AY22/23 List of Deleted and New Courses, Carman

The “List of Deleted and New courses” provides an annual summary of actions taken by the Faculty Senate’s University Course Review Committee. The list is provided annually to the Board at their September meeting per UW Regulation 2-119. There was no Board discussion.

AGENDA ITEM TITLE: Emeritus Faculty Designations, Carman, Benham-Deal

Information was provided to the Board about personnel matters, including recommendations for Emeritus designation. Per UW Regulations 2-1, the granting of Emeritus designation is within the discretion of the Trustees upon the recommendation of the President. Emeritus recommendations are provided to the Board in September for retirements occurring between January and August of the academic year. Recommendations for faculty retiring between September and December are presented to the Board in January. There was no Board discussion.

AGENDA ITEM TITLE: Academic Personnel Appointments, Carman, Benham Deal

Per UW Regulation 2-1, academic appointments are presented to the Board annually. Senior Vice Provost Tami Benham-Deal discussed the report which included new faculty for AY 2023-24. The report also included faculty who started in AY2022-23 and whose appointments were finalized after the annual report was submitted. There was no Board discussion.

In December 2022, UW President Seidel charged the Freedom of Expression, Intellectual Freedom, and Constructive Dialogue Working Group with developing recommendations on how to advance UW’s ability to protect and promote these concepts vital to any thriving university. The working group, comprised of faculty, staff, students, and external stakeholders, submitted its recommendations to the President in June 2023. President Seidel stated he was proud of the collaborative effort on the final report and working group recommendations (see pages 65-72 of the September 2023 Board Report). President Seidel stated the working group engaged several key external Wyoming stakeholders from around the state who gave very generously of their time to be included in this process to ensure that we could hear a broad diversity of thoughts and perspectives on these issues from throughout the state to inform the principals and recommendations. President Seidel described the outreach and listening efforts of the working group with faculty senates, staff senates, ASUW, UW at Casper College, deans, and directors, as well as the broader university community.

Working Group Cochairman Martha McCaughey addressed the Board stating that the working group reaffirmed and strengthened long-standing university principles and values which hold that in order to fully perform the university’s knowledge seeking mission, we honor the intellectual freedom of all individuals to seek and receive information without restriction. We embrace the academic freedom of scholars to follow the evidence wherever it may lead, to share research results, to question and to criticize. Our administrative leaders remain neutral on the social and political issues of the day so as not to chill individuals’ expressions of criticism or dissent. And we recognize and respect people's constitutional rights as ordinary citizens to free expression. And as a government institution, we do this even when such expressions are unpopular or even hateful. McCaughey stated these principles need to be reflected rather than compromised in our policies, procedures, and institutional communications. For this reason, the Working Group recommended the review and revision of existing policies to ensure that students and professors are evaluated on the basis of academic performance, not personal views or identities. Neither instructors nor students support staff use their time with students as occasions for partisan ideological messaging; that curricular decisions come from credentialed faculty experts; that clear and content neutral guidelines govern processes for poster distribution, room reservations, tabling, student performances and other events; and that our policies, procedures, and principles are communicated clearly to all perspectives and new students, to all employees, and to the public. McCaughey stated she believes the Working Group’s principles truly reflect Wyoming's distinct heritage of equality, respect, and individual rights.

Working Group Cochairman Nevin Aikin added that the working group recommends enhancing the practice and principles of freedom of expression at the university and spoke to the recommendations in the report around commuting the principles and sharing information about the principles that the Working Group has recommended with both internal and external audiences. Aiken stated that, internally, this is around orientation training materials, providing support resources to faculty, staff, and students at the university to make sure that everybody understands their rights and their responsibilities around freedom of expression and ways to navigate any concerns or issues that might arise moving forward. Aikin discussed the recommendations around institutional marketing with freedom of expression, about how to position the university as a national leader in this area and what impacts that might have for new student recruitment and enrollment. Aiken discussed recommendations related to how the university can reinforce and cultivate a real culture of freedom of expression, provide simple discourse in dialogue among all members of the campus community and visitors to campus, and recognizing that a university that's really truly committed to things like academic freedom, intellectual freedom, and freedom of expression won't always agree with each other's ideas. Aiken closed stating the principles and the recommendations that appear in the report are the result of a truly collaborative effort among those who care deeply about the University of Wyoming.

President Seidel discussed next steps to include a communication to campus, and through an implementation plan led by McCaughey that supports the university’s Strategic Plan 2023+ representing the many aspects of the suggested recommended actions that we would take beyond the principles themselves, such as raising the visibility of the university by promoting how we operate at a national level. President Seidel stated the importance of providing students the ability to really express themselves and have respectable discourse capability. President Seidel discussed the need to review university policies and procedures and engage the Faculty Senate and Staff Senate in the review process. President Seidel stated the Vice President for Student Affairs will review the Student Code of Conduct, and the Provost will look to make sure that courses are developed in line with academic freedom to ensure changes to curricula are vetted by credentialed experts.

Trustee McKinley requested clarification whether the working group report was final. President Seidel stated that he has accepted the working group report and its recommendations, but the recommendations will be worked through various existing university processes and then there will be a final report incorporating any necessary changes to process at the end of this semester, perhaps in November or December 2023.

Trustee Brad Bonner described his experience as a member of the working group and restated that input received from external stakeholders represented a spectrum of viewpoints and political philosophy. Trustee Bonner remarked that he found it fascinating to apply the varied viewpoints into the recommendations for how the university might foster a culture that welcomes freedom of expression.

Trustee Dave True expressed his appreciation for the time and efforts of the working group and went on to state a concern which, he said, applies to this working group’s report which provides principles and guidance but is void of stated consequence if none are met or followed. Trustee True went on to state that at times the line between freedom of expression and promoting or advocating for a political point of view is blurry. Trustee True stated there are manners of addressing “inappropriate behavior” which he said was an important part of the implementation of the recommendations in the report, and requested administration have a plan. Trustee True stated that indication that a political agenda in the classroom will not be tolerated is one way to differentiate this university from other institutions. President Seidel thanked Trustee True and stated that the working group provided principles and many specific recommendations in its report, and that he would take the message into account as the work progressed.

Trustee Michelle Sullivan discussed the need to develop a culture in which majority and minority points of view are welcome. Trustee Sullivan said the root of the word culture is to cultivate, and that the setting and execution of the principles in the report will require ongoing effort. Trustee Sullivan stated that she was not sure that consequences are the best way to cultivate a culture.

In response to comment from Trustee David Fall about public access to the report, it was discussed that the working group’s final report is part of the September 2023 Board Report and is available online. President Seidel stated the report has been circulated for comment and numerous responses were received. Trustee McKinley thanked working group chairman McCaughey and Aikin.

AGENDA ITEM TITLE: Annual Report: Status of Implementation of the Strategic Plan and President’s Report on Accomplishments, Seidel

In January 2023, The Board of Trustees accepted the University of Wyoming’s Strategic Plan 2023+ which includes five primary objectives: 1) Enhance Student Success, 2) Pursue Institutional Excellence, 3) Provide a Supportive Community, 4) Engage with and Serve the State of Wyoming, and 5) Cultivate Financial Stability and Diversification. UW President Ed Seidel discussed the status of the implementation and reported on major accomplishments over the course of the last year.

The president took the opportunity to thank the state legislature again for its significant support of capital construction and restated his focus on people and programs at the university as outlined in the Strategic Plan 2023+. President Seidel discussed the commitment to student success and fostering a healthy and productive campus culture referencing as he has before, and as an example, the anecdote about the NASA janitor who, when asked about his work, stated that he was helping put a man on the moon.

President Seidel went on to address the thorough examination of the university’s recruitment and enrollment process to insure it is as instinctive and streamlined as possible. President Seidel remarked on the results of the university’s partnership with Shorelight and the infrastructure in place to support international students. President Seidel said he looked forward to the Working Group on Marketing and Communications final report in January 2024. President Seidel reported on the minor in digital skills available to every student through the School of Computing. President Seidel discussed a number of federal grant opportunities, and the work toward R1 designation.

President Seidel discussed the plans to implement recommendations in the Deloitte Staff Organizations Structure Review and Classification and Compensation Study, one of which is to create job architecture that will reduce role ambiguity and clarify role alignment, support consistent career pathing, and simplify external benchmarking allowing the university to offer competitive compensation.

President Seidel reported the Office of Engagement and Outreach conducted a successful search for a director and described efforts to increase statewide engagement. The president stated the university looked forward to the response to its Carnegie Foundation Elective Classification for Community Engagement in December 2023. The president provided update on the reinforced relationship with NCAR-Wyoming Supercomputing Center providing supercomputing time to faculty, and the improvements in Division of Research and Economic Development and its work to enhance external funding and corporate partnerships. President Seidel closed his report discussing the Neltje Center for Excellence in Creativity and the Arts and the plans to host a celebration of arts and humanities on campus; that plans were underway for a trip to Berlin, Germany through the Alumni Association’s International Experience; and the successful season at the AMK Ranch which hosted visits from Cardiff University and Argonne National Lab.

AGENDA ITEM TITLE: Annual Report: Department of Intercollegiate Athletics. Burman Athletic Director Tom Burman provided the Board an annual report describing various challenges facing athletics, stating conference realignment and dramatic growth of Name Image and Likeness (NIL) and collectives related to recruitment and retention of athletes are particularly difficult in a small market institution. Burman provided update on the Mountain West Conference (MWC), and the unstable landscape to college athletics. Burman reported he is working hard along with UW President Ed Seidel to whatever possible to best position the University of Wyoming (UW). Burman went on to discuss the athletics department GPA averages and other successes and achievements of UW athletes. In response to inquiry from Trustee Brad Bonner, Burman stated the realignment of the conference is dictated by football. In response to further inquiry, Burman restated the university is doing everything it can, and President Seidel is consistently engaged with the Mountain West Conference commission. Burman stated the university must demonstrate its dedicated and connected fan base, which is what makes UW unique. In response to inquiry from Trustee David Fall, Burman discussed the drawbacks of a potential reverse merger. Burman discussed the characteristics of the Big Sky Conference. In response to inquiry from Trustee Kermit Brown, Burman stated that any time there is a change in MWC membership it opens up media rights negotiation. President Seidel discussed the frequency and strategic quality of communication among the MWC commissioners.

AGENDA ITEM TITLE: Annual Report: Office of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion. Hall Vice President for Diversity, Equity and Inclusion (DEI) Zebadiah Hall discussed the Office of Diversity Equity and Inclusion’s (ODEI) work through the lens of the Wyoming Constitution, the Code of the West, and the university’s accrediting bodies and within the ongoing objectives of the 2023+ Strategic Plan. Hall stated ODEI continues to support and deliver on the university’s mission, and discussed ODEI’s work toward making sure all students, faculty and staff feel like they belong and matter on UW’s campus. Hall discussed the search for an Associate Vice President for DEI discussing the make-up of the search committee. Hall provided examples of his engagement across campus and throughout the state, and ways in which the Code of the West applies to DEI. Hall discussed his role as the Title VI Coordinator and ADA Coordinator for the university, and his having led a workshop for local law enforcement crisis intervention teams. Hall described his engagement with the Black 14 Summer Institute, and discussed relationship building with the UW Foundation as it begins to consider the DEI mission in fundraising efforts. Trustee Dave Fall expressed appreciation for the mission statement and inquired what Hall considered to be the biggest challenge facing DEI efforts. In response, Hall discussed national polarization generally. Trustee Brad Bonner asked Hall to provide thoughts on the DEI name and whether he felt it invites harm to the work. Hall expressed a desire to maintain the DEI name, and if not, to engage in a statewide conversation when considering a change. Trustee Kermit Brown stated the title might be provocative, and whether a change might stave off a potential statutory decision. prohibiting the work. UW President Ed Seidel stated there is benefit to Hall’s ability to well articulate the work to a myriad of stakeholders.

AGENDA ITEM TITLE: Update on Short-List Progress: UW Board of Trustees and Wyoming Community College Commission Meeting August 2, 2023, K. Moore

The University of Wyoming Board of Trustees and the Wyoming Community College Commission (WCCC) held a special joint meeting at Casper College on Wednesday, August 2, 2023. A joint meeting was convened to engage in effective communication and discussion regarding higher-education, identification of areas of concern that these boards can address and solidify common understandings of the Wyoming Innovation Partnership (WIP). During the August 16, 2023, meeting the Board requested administration provide a progress update on items discussed with the WCCC: addressing BAS issues to include collaborations and coordination with the Wyoming Community Colleges (WCC); commitment to the transferability of credits; and University of Wyoming counselors at the WCCs. Moore stated the university had opportunity to provide input, and upon review is satisfied with the contribution. Senior Policy Advisor for Governor Mark Gordon Lachelle Brant reiterated the need to avoid duplication of efforts and continuing to improve communication between the university and the WCCs regarding programming and state investments. Wyoming Community College Commission Deputy Director Ben Moritz discussed assertion of process as the WCCC considers new programming to avoid duplication. Trustee McKinley requested update on progress related to university presence at WCCs. UW President Ed Seidel reported discussions had begun regarding co-enrollment.

AGENDA ITEM TITLE: Recruitment and Marketing Outcomes, Carman, K. Moore, Baldwin

Vice Provost for Enrollment Management Kyle Moore, and Associate Vice President for Marketing and Communications Chad Baldwin provided the Board a report on progress and next steps of the Strategic Enrollment Planning (SEP) project and the infusion of approximately $1.5 million in additional spending on marketing and advertising efforts related to recruitment. Beginning August 20, 2023, the following items are in place or in progress, as a specific result of the additional funding: digital advertising spends (social media recruitment ads); printed recruitment material enhancements; Out of Home-Billboards on I-80 & US287 (in contract stage); Marketing and Graphic Design Position to be in the hiring process by end of September 2023; Parent Weekend invites are pending; website degree page development (in quote stage); Out of Home advertising, Denver International Airport and Steamboat resort (in quote stage); and engagement with Niche Direct Admit & College Board. It was discussed that successful efforts around strategic enrollment process are not just marketing centered but should focus on the way the institution conducts business and its ability to meet students where they are and how they prefer to be served. Moore stated that the Board’s infusion of funds has already shown a return on investment. Trustee Kermit Brown suggested some of the efforts be directed toward potential students transferring from the Wyoming Community Colleges (WCC). Trustee McKinley inquired whether WCC student information is shared with the university. Wyoming Community College Commission (WCCC) Deputy Director Ben Moritz discussed FERPA requirements which prohibit the sharing of student information. There was discussion about opening up various pathways through which the university might identify students interested in transferring to the university such as providing an Opt In for students to indicate authorization to share information among Wyoming institutions of higher education. Moritz discussed the capabilities of the WyoTransfer portal and the next phase to increase a student’s ability to map transfer options to the University of Wyoming.

AGENDA ITEM TITLE: Fall Enrollment Census Information, K. Moore
Vice Provost for Enrollment Management Kyle Moore provided the Board with the results of the September 15, 2023, Census Report stating significant increases in transfer and graduate students helped make up for an unexpected drop in first-time students at the university this fall. The 858 new transfer students represent an 8.6 percent increase from the 790 in fall 2022, including an 11.9 percent increase in in-state transfers. The 2,663 graduate students are up 3.1 percent from the 2,582 last fall. The university’s overall enrollment of 10,913 is down 1.7 percent from 11,100 in fall 2022, although the number of students from Wyoming is up by 4 percent. Moore further reported that after two straight years of increases in the university’s first-time freshman classes, including a 10.2 percent increase last fall, this year’s first-time headcount is down 10.1 percent. That’s primarily a result of a 14.4 percent drop in out-of-state freshmen, from 658 to 583. This year’s freshman class includes 900 Wyoming residents, down 7.1 percent from last fall, when the 969 first-time students from Wyoming was the second-largest number ever recorded at the university. Moore stated that a bright spot this fall is the fact that overall Wyoming resident enrollment is up 4 percent from last fall, rising from 7,393 to 7,692. Additionally, the number of students taking classes through online degree programs increased by 13.2 percent, from 1,607 to 1,819. As well, the percentage of full-time freshmen in fall 2022 who returned to the university this fall is 77.0 percent, up from last year’s fall-to-fall retention rate of 75.4 percent.

Trustee Kermit Brown discussed the university’s competitive cost to online programming and expressed frustration that the university is not effectively capturing online transfer students. In response to inquiry from Trustee David Fall, Moore discussed how Colorado needs to be seen as its own market further stating that many Colorado students desire to stay local include attending the University of Wyoming (UW) because of price-point. In response to inquiry from Trustee Dave True, Moore stated that UW is average nationally as it relates to decrease in overall enrollment. In response to further inquiry from Trustee True, Moore reported a 9.9 percent increase to UW at Casper College enrollment. Wyoming Community College Commission (WCCC) Deputy Director Ben Moritz offered that WCCC uses the national student clearing house to track where Wyoming Community College students chose to transfer, and UW stands out considerably. In response to inquiry from Trustee John McKinley, Moritz stated that where department to department and faculty to faculty communication between the university and community colleges is done well, transfers tend to be higher. Trustee Michelle Sullivan discussed the importance of having a UW presence at community colleges and the opportunities of Wyoming’s Tomorrow scholarships. Moore reported the Articulation Summit will take place on October 5, 2023.

AGENDA ITEM TITLE: UW Foundation Fundraising Priorities, Seidel/Stark
UW President Ed Seidel continued the discussion that took place during the July 2023 Board meeting stating the FY24 university and UW Foundation fundraising will focus on student success, faculty excellence, and facilities and programs. These proposed priorities support the university’s strategic plan, particularly following the objectives: 1) enhance student success, 2) pursue institutional excellence, 3) provide a supportive community, and 4) cultivate financial stability and diversification. Vice President for Institutional Advancement John Stark stated donors have a particular appetite to support student success, and there is emerging cultural philanthropy for named faculty. Stark discussed the success and sustained fundraising momentum of the previous comprehensive campaign, and the planning processes and enthusiasm across campus for the upcoming comprehensive campaign. Stark reported that Giving Day is October 25-26, 2023. Stark reported that out of its reserve account the UW Foundation Board appropriated $250,000 in challenge grant dollars to support Giving Day.
