

Jean Garrison (University of Wyoming)

Jean Garrison is the director of the Center for Global Studies and a professor of political science and international studies at the University of Wyoming. In Fall 2015 she was a senior visiting research fellow at the Kolleg-Forschergruppe (KFG) – Transformative Power of Europe at the Freie Universität Berlin researching climate and energy security policy. She also has been a visiting fellow with the Maureen and Mike Mansfield Foundation in Washington, DC and is the past recipient of a Council on Foreign Relations International Affairs Fellowship and has worked in the Office of Chinese and Mongolian Affairs in the U.S. State Department. Her research interests focus on U.S. foreign policy with an emphasis on U.S.-China relations, leadership, small group dynamics, and energy security. She is the author of three books including China and the Energy Equation in Asia (2009), Making China Policy: The Determinants of Policy Choice (2005), and Games Advisors Play (1999) and numerous articles and book chapters focusing on U.S. foreign policy, U.S.-China relations and energy security. Garrison holds a PhD in political science from the University of South Carolina and B.A. in political science from the University of Wyoming.