Inspire Webinar: Stronger Together-Affirming and Reconnecting

On August 26th, 2021, Inspire Teaching and Learning partnered with Harmony SEL to discuss what it means to build stronger ties among students, families, and communities. Dr. Susan Green (New York City Department of Education) and Communities in Schools representatives Jessie Cuddy and Jacqueline Stedman were presenters.

Funding Opportunities for Wyoming Innovation

The well-being of the students and the future is supported by the work of the families, the schools, and the community coming together. This mentality is held up high by the John P. Ellbogen Foundation and the work that they are continuously doing throughout Wyoming. Currently, they are showcasing this philosophy once more through the Graduate: All Students Successful Grant.

Spreading Change: Safe and Just Schools

Developing meaningful workshops that appeal and inspire to a large number of educators is no easy measure, but the Wyoming Education Association (WEA) is doing just that. Recently, we talked to the Vice-President of WEA Kim Amen about the series of workshops they are doing called “Safe and Just Schools.” This series of workshops is funded through grants from the National Education Association and developed by Wyoming educators to unite Wyoming-specific material with nationally recognized training received.
